Union Chief Has Failed to Give Probers Records

By HERBERT FOSTER

WASHINGTON, (UP) — Dave Beck, president of the powerful Teamsters Union, has failed thus far to hand over his personal financial records to the Senate Rackets Investigating committee.

This was disclosed today by Robert F. Kennedy, committee counsel, as the committee prepared to resume hearings tomorrow on charges Teamster officials were linked with vice, gambling and political influence on the West Coast.

Meanwhile the No. 2 man in the Teamsters union, James R. Hoffa, said in Detroit the Senate hearings "have amounted to nothing so far." He said he has seen nothing in the hearings to "implicate" Beck or Frank W. Brewster, a Teamster vice president accused of links with racketeers and vice in testimony last week.

"All I have seen is that some unreliable witnesses have testified they heard somebody tell somebody but there's no real evidence to back anything," they've said," said Hoffa, himself a Teamster vice president.

Western Teamster officials gave Brewster a vote of self-confidence Saturday.

Committee members predicted over the weekend their sensation-packed inquiry will lead to legislation to correct alleged union abuses.

Sen. Earl E. Muntz (R-S. D.), a member, said, "we have a dozen cases as bad" as the allegations concerning the West Coast Teamsters.

Beck, president of the nation's biggest union, was asked several days ago by committee Chairman John L. McClellan (D-Ark.) to turn over his "personal financial records" for the past seven years.

The committee had heard charges that the Teamsters union helped pay for Beck's plush home in Seattle, Wash., then bought the home back from him for $102,000 but authorized him to live there rent-free for life.

McClellan, "inviting" Beck to attend the hearings, noted the committee had information reflecting on his finances and added, "It is anticipated that further information of that nature will be developed by the committee hearings at an early date." He did not elaborate.

Beck, now in Europe, said he would have "no objection" to furnishing his records to the committee, whose formal name is the "committee on improper activities in the labor or management field."

However Kennedy said today no representative of Beck has yet contacted the committee. The union chief is due back from Europe later this month and is due to appear in person before the committee at a date not yet announced.

Leaders of McCaskill to State Meet

Tuesday and Wednesday, March 5 and 6, leaders from the McCaskill and Victory Communities will attend the State Community Leaders Conference at the Lafayette Hotel in Little Rock, according to Mrs. Lorraine E. Wylie, Home Demonstration Agent.

This leaders conference is being held to strengthen the Rural Community Improvement work in the State. It has been organized to provide an opportunity for rural leaders to secure training, sufficient to help them with work in their communities.

McCaskill was Southwest District winner this year and will be competing against the winners from the other three districts for state honor. The State winner will be announced at the banquet Tuesday night. Mr. Theodore S. Gold, Assistant to the Secretary of Agriculture, will be the principal speaker.

Thirty-six counties took part in the district judging this year, an increase of eight over last year. The main object of the program, which is sponsored by the Extension Service, the Arkansas Power and Light Company, and the Arkansas Press Association is to recognize the needs of a community and to build enthusiasm among the people of the area to work toward meeting or improving these needs for the general improvement of the total community," states Mrs. Wylie.

Leaders attending will be Mrs. J. E. Mozes, President of the the McCaskill Rural Community Improvement Group; Mrs. Orville Westcott, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Priddy, and Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Bittick, all of McCaskill; Mrs. William Schooley, Victory, and the County Extension Agents.

Missing Girl Found Dead in Closet

BELLMAN, N. J. — The search for tiny Mary Jane Barker ended in a closet of a vacant ranch house yesterday, where a playmate found the huddled body of the pretty blonde child.

Six-year-old Maria Fietta, visiting the newly built house of her aunt, playfully threw open a closet door. Her puppy, which had disappeared along with Mary Jane last Monday, bounded out, alive and frisky. On the floor lay 4-year-old Mary Jane, her blonde tresses covered by the hood of her jacket.

A medical authority "connected with the investigation" declined to be identified — said in his opinion the child probably died of fright and starvation after being trapped in the cold darkness with the black "spaniel" puppy. A preliminary autopsy indicated Mary Jane had eaten nothing since she drank a glass of chocolate milk shortly before she vanished about 10:30 a. m. last Monday.

Cave-in at Little Rock Leaves 3 Persons Dead

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The bodies of three workmen were recovered from an avalanche of dirt and rock today that collapsed at an excavating site in the Little Rock business district.

A fourth workman was rescued a few minutes after the wall, about a half block long, gave way suddenly, burying the men under 10 feet of damp earth and rock.

The scene was one of confusion. A fireman directing rescue operations had reported four dead and one injured. After the digging operation stopped, firemen said three bodies were recovered and the workman rescued suffered a broken leg and possible chest and internal injuries.

The site of the cave-in was Sixth and Main in the heart of the Little Rock business district. The excavation was for a new J. C. Continued on Page Two

Camden Woman Disappears

CAMDEN (UP) — Mrs. Maude Crawford, prominent attorney here, disappeared from her home Saturday night, apparently leaving no trace.

Searching officers, with no announced clues, today renewed the hunt, checking all possibilities. Yesterday they combed the banks of the Ouachita River with no results.

The 51-year-old woman is a member of the Camden firm of Gough, McClellan & Laney. U. S. Sen. John McClellan (D-Ark.) is the McClellan of the firm.

Mrs. Crawford's husband, Clyde, told Camden police he last saw his wife about 8 o'clock Saturday night when he left for a movie. He said she was working on some legal papers.

Crawford told officers that when he returned several lights were burning, the television set was on and legal documents were spread out on a table.

There were no signs of a disturbance, he said. He told police their large Dalmatian dog greeted him when he came in about 11 p. m. The animal appeared unharmed and did not seem excited, he said.

Mrs. Pauline Abels, a family friend, said the dog would not have permitted anyone to get near Mrs. Crawford. The Crawfords have no children. Several young women room on the upper floor of the Crawford home, but police said none was there at the time Mrs. Crawford disappeared.

Mrs. Crawford, a native of Warren, Ark., has lived in Camden for about 40 years. She has been associated with the law firm for about 30 years, Mrs. Abels said, and was the city's first woman attorney.

Crawford, a floor polishing contractor, said she drove to the movie in a pickup truck. Police said the family car was parked at the house.

Band Concert Tuesday Night at High School

The feature entertainment program for this week in Hope will be a concert on Tuesday night, March 5, by the Hope Junior and senior high bands in the High School auditorium. Curtain time is 7:30 and admission is twenty-five cents for students, fifty cents for adults.

This, the second of a pair of winter concerts, promises to give to local music lovers an even better treat than the first. On the modern "classical" side is a powerful new work, "Alleluia and Chorale," by Howard Hanson. From Richard Wagner's Opera "Lohengrin" comes the movingly beautiful "Elsa's Procession To The Cathedral."

Lighter numbers on the program, but certainly no less interesting, include a "Trombone Novella," a jump tune for Lingling feet, and some of the modern popular ballads. All in all, this program is one that should completely outdo the year's previous concert and to the audience that packed the high school auditorium then, that statement is really a challenge.

Action Relieves Grave Tension in Middle East

By WLATER LOGAN

United Press Staff Correspondent

Premier David Ben-Gurion today ordered the Israeli army to proceed with "full and prompt" withdrawal from the Gaza strip and the Gulf of Aqaba area.

An official source said Ben-Gurion will present the knesset (parliament) with his decision tomorrow as "an act of faith in the international community."

Within four hours of Ben-Gurion's decision, Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, commander of the United Nations emergency force (UNEF), announced "full agreement in principle on technical details of the Israeli pullout from Egyptian territory."

Burns refused to say when the long-awaited withdrawal would begin.

After a 50-minute conference at Lydda Airport outside Tel Aviv with Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, chief of staff of the Israeli Army, Burns said he would report immediately to U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold in New York.

Burns refused to say whether Egyptian troops would be allowed back into the Gaza strip, one of the main objections offered by Israel against a withdrawal of its forces.

"It is not my concern," is a political statement, Burns said. "I am not aware of the possibility of the return of the Egyptians into Gaza—nor otherwise."

Burns and Dayan met after Ben-Gurion ordered his army "to proceed immediately with plans for the Israeli withdrawal. The UNEF commander flew from Tel Aviv, near the Gaza strip, to Lydda, arriving at 5 p. m. (9 a. m. CST) About an hour later, the military details were settled.

The move climaxed a hectic weekend in Ben-Gurion's battle to comply with U. N. demands that Israel leave Egypt's territory without toppling his own coalition government, in which opposition elements bitterly opposed withdrawal.

Determined to end the crisis, Ben-Gurion called ministers and political leaders to his home one at a time during the morning, and then reached his decision to act now. Without the formality of seeing either cabinet or the parliament, the word went out to Dayan to get started.

The order was transmitted to Maj. Gen. Moshe Dayan, Israeli Army chief of staff, who was told to meet immediately with Maj. Gen. E. L. M. Burns, commander of the United Nations Emergency force (UNEF), to complete plans for the withdrawal.

Ben-Gurion planned to make his formal announcement of the withdrawal to the Israeli parliament tomorrow.

U.S. Can't Please All in Middle East

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — How will the United States look in this Israeli-Arab controversy?

That question has been temporarily obscured by the more sensational on-again-off-again efforts of the State Department to get the Israelis to pull back out of territory claimed by Egypt, the Gaza Strip and Aquaba Gulf area.

It will move up front and center as events unfold.

Friday, after weeks of talks with Secretary of State Dulles, the Israelis announced to the United Nations they would pull back. The statement was made by Mrs. Golda Meir, Israeli foreign minister.

Until then Israel had demanded of the United States or the U.N. guarantees that it did not withdraw Egypt would not be permitted to use Gaza or the Gulf area to resume raids against Israel or blockade shipping.

No public guarantees were given. But Mrs. Meir said Israel was basing its willingness to withdraw on "assumptions" and in "confidence" that U. N. forces would move in when the Israelis moved out.

Those words were bound to raise questions: Had the Israelis some secret promise or agreement from Dulles that the United States somehow would be able to get the U. N. to put its troops in the vacated areas?

The Arabs had opposed any promises or guarantees to Israel on the grounds that an aggressor—Israel—had attacked and seized the territory from Egypt last fall—should not be rewarded for aggression.

And Egyptian President Nasser had insisted weeks ago that U. N. troops could occupy Egyptian territory only so long as it pleased him to let them stay.

So world attention centered on Henry Cabot Lodge, United States representative in the U. N. and therefore a spokesman for Dulles, when he withdrew Mrs. Meir before the U. N.

He said he didn't consider Israel's withdrawal "conditional." He made a long speech, so involved that it could, possibly, seem like one thing to the Arabs and another to the Israelis.

There was no enthusiastic response from the Arabs in the U. N. and the Israelis, judging from the extraordinary Cabinet meeting they held over the weekend, were having second thoughts about withdrawing.

Dulles, anxious that the Arab nations in the Middle East would not think this country had worked out a deal with the Israelis, called in the representatives of nine Arab countries and told them that Israel had extracted "no promises or concessions whatsoever" from the United States in return for agreeing to the troop pullout.

But the Arabs, after the conference with Dulles were reported in a "Let's wait and see" mood.

The Israelis apparently weren't happy either.

Last week, shortly before his government said it would pull back, Israeli Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion wrote to a friendly London editor and told him his country's struggle "is not against an enemy but against a friend—the United States government."

He said: "It is our earnest hope that the wisdom and sense of fair play of the American people will prevail over considerations of mistaken political expediency."

Dulles and President Eisenhower had worked for the Israeli withdrawal not only to bring peace to the Middle East but to avoid a showdown fight in the U. N.

The Arabs were demanding sanctions against Israel if it didn't pull back. If the United States backed such sanctions, it would anger friends of Israel in this country and among American allies abroad like France and Britain.

If it didn't back sanctions, it would anger the Arabs, whom Eisenhower is trying to win over with his Middle East program.

a hectic weekend during which Ben-Gurion fought off opposition at home and sought further clarification U. S. views from Israeli representatives in Washington and New York.

Official sources said the Israeli cabinet's decision was based on a message from President Eisenhower to Ben-Gurion early Sunday.

In parliament, Ben-Gurion faces a motion of non-confidence introduced by the herut opposition party. In effect, Ben-Gurion has gone against a probable majority of Israeli public opinion to withdraw from the disputed areas. If he does not survive the parliamentary vote, he will not be able to enforce the withdrawal decision. He was expected to win it, however.

Eisenhower, the situation was this:—the nine-nation arab league in Cairo informed the United States it opposed United Nations administration of the Gaza Strip and enforcement of freedom of navigation on the Gulf of Aqaba. Both are key assumptions in Israel's decision to withdraw.

The independent Egyptian newspaper Al Akhbar predicted in Cairo that Israel would be forced to withdraw from both areas re-

Storms Hit Wide Area in S. Texas

DALLAS (AP)—Hail and torrential rains lashed parts of drought-stricken south Texas over the weekend and welcome showers fell throughout the state. The Weather Bureau forecast more rain today.

More than an inch of rain fell along with hail in drought-parched Karnes County, where government food commodities are being distributed to more than 10,000 of the county's 17,000 residents.

The area, once a leading agricultural county, is one of the hardest hit drought regions in the State.

The rain fell yesterday extending in scattered areas across the entire state.

Traffic was stalled because of a hailstorm on U. S. Highway 59 between Goliad and Beville. No heavy damage was reported.

A sudden storm drenched the Fashion community in Karnes County with 110 inches of rain in a few minutes yesterday afternoon.

Hail covered the ground in a 40-mile belt from a point 16 miles west of Corpus Christi to George West, Tex.

Cave-in at

Penny store.

The buried men were part of a crew of eight, digging a footing directly below the wall running from Main along Sixth street. Half of the crew leaped to safety.

An engineer on the project, John Head from Atlanta, Ga., said the earth slide came without warning.

All available police and fire crews joined volunteer workers in the rescue operation. A crowd pressed against the board fence that separates the walk and the excavation site.

The rescued man, Benjamin Hammond of Woodson, Ark., said he had started running backward when the earth came tumbling down but was overtaken by the slide. Workers quickly dug him out.

Ironically, in 1925, almost 32 years ago, a similar cave-in occurred in the same block at the excavation of a building site later occupied by the J. C. Penny Co. That slide killed one workman and injured two others.

The dead were identified as Anderson Lewis, 48, of Little Rock, from a drivers license; Nathaniel Criswell, 28, of Damascus, Ark.; and Abe Lowman, address unknown.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A crushing avalanche of rock and dirt fell on workers at an excavating site in the Little Rock business district today killing at least four.

One man was rescued alive a few minutes after an earthen wall a half city block long collapsed at Sixth and Main in the heart of the business district.

A witness, John Head, engineer on the excavating project said the 20-foot-high dirt embankment gave way without warning.

"I had just walked away from where the men were digging," he said. "They all just collapsed. There was no chance for them to get away."

The workman rescued was standing further away from the wall when it fell and was dug out quickly. He suffered a broken leg and possible chest and internal injuries.

Initially the scene was near panic. Screams of witnesses were heard and a crowd of several hundred pressed around the site which was being dug for the foundation of a basement of a new J. C. Penny store.

Ambulances, fire and police rescue squads helped a bulldozer crew push back the tons of rock and earth. Wives of the trapped workmen wept hysterically as the impossible rescue went on.

Firemen said they believed all of the bodies have been recovered but the digging continued. A superintendent, not identified, told police he was certain only five men were trapped.

It took 20 minutes to recover the first bodies. They were buried beneath 10 feet of damp earth and rock.

About 100 workmen, firemen and volunteers assisted in the digging operation.

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Ark. Several tons of earth and rock caved in on an undetermined number of workmen at a business district excavating site today. Workmen estimate from four to eight men are trapped beneath the slide.

One workman was freed by rescue crews about five minutes after the cave-in and suffered a broken leg and chest injuries. He told fire and police rescue units about "four or five" of his crew was beneath the dirt and rock.

A bulldozer crew worked furiously to free the trapped workmen. An officer said each minute increased the danger of suffocation.

The site of the cave-in is the heart of the Little Rock business district. The digging was in preparation for a new national chain store to be constructed on the site.

All available fire and police units were at the scene and a crowd of several hundred pressed around the board wall separating the excavation site from the sidewalk.

Court Upholds $30,000 Judgment

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Arkansas Supreme Court today affirmed a judgment for $30,208 plus 12 percent penalty for a subcontractor against the prime contractor in the much-litigated Pine Bluff sewer construction project.

The judgment was returned in Jefferson Chancery Court for Robinson Construction Co. against Lancaster & Love, Inc., and the latter's surety, Trinity Universal Insurance Co.

Robinson successfully contended it had not been paid the full amount due on a subcontract from Lancaster & Love, which was main contractor for construction of a sewer system at Pine Bluff some five years ago.

The Supreme Court left undecided the size of an attorney's fee for Robinson's lawyers, which is involved in a separate appeal. The trial judge allowed $10,000.

The lower court decision was issued by Chief Justice Carlton Harris, who was Jefferson Chancery until Dec. 31. Harris did not participate in today's ruling on the appeal nor in that on another Jefferson Chancery case, decided today.

DOROTHY DIX

Too Much Pride to Take Job, But He'll Free-Load Gladly

Dear Dorothy Dix: Our daughter and her family have been with us for the past two years. Her husband is not a practical man. He's always felt that a good living was to be had at some distant place or another, packed his family up, and moved. Finally, they landed here.

My husband offered him a job, which he declined. He says he has too much pride to accept favors. I guess he doesn't consider it a favor that we've had to support his family for two years. How can we make him see reason?

Mrs. D. R.: The man probably thinks he's doing you a favor by accepting your hospitality. He knows you wouldn't hurt your daughter or the children, so he's settled down as a permanent free-loader. Harsh words or threats will send him sulkily away, secretly glad to be free of responsibility and able to blame it all on you.

Your daughter is in the best position to deliver an ultimatum. Until she finds out that works, I guess you're stuck.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Will you please give me a few helpful rules to follow so I may keep my future husband happy and loving? I want to make him the happiest man in the world.

Nan commented on and demonstrated covered as much ground as a mile of rules in your simple assertion that you want to make him a happy man. You know the things that make him happy better than anyone else. By striving to be and do those things, you'll accomplish your purpose. In fact, you'll accomplish a double purpose—you'll both be happy!

Most of the endless rules for a successful marriage boil down to else's happiness instead of your own. If you have mutual respect and consideration for each other, the humility to give in when necessary, and faith in each other, you will create a happy home. Good luck!

Dear Dorothy Dix: Although I have given up church, lodge, friends and have done everything I can think of for my girl, she says I have never proven my love. I take her anywhere she wants to go, spend all my time with her and get her everything she wants. What else can I do?

Dear Wilbur: For her you can do nothing; for yourself you can do plenty. Get wise, son, and shake this leech. Go back to your church,

Violent Death Comes to 15 in Arkansas

By The Associated Press

Eight traffic fatalities led the toll of 15 violent deaths in Arkansas during the week that ended at midnight Sunday.

There were three drownings, two deaths in timber-cutting accidents, one fatal shooting and one death from fire.

A De Witt cafe owner was shot to death in front of his establishment yesterday as his wife watched.

The victim was Lewis Carl McCown, 43, who was shot in the shoulder, the back of the head and the leg. Police held Woodrow McMillan, 39, of DeWitt on an open charge in connection with the slaying.

Chief of Police Charles Tiner said the men had been "gambling" at McCown's home and got in an argument over $26. They drove to the cafe where McMillan's truck was parked, the chief said, and McMillan obtained a pistol from his vehicle.

Tiner quoted McMillan as saying he fired once and McCown jumped out of his car. Then three more shots were fired, Tiner said, and McCown fell to the pavement. He was dead when a physician arrived.

A Van Buren soldier home on leave died yesterday of injuries received when a car he was driving and one driven by his brother collided on a Fort Smith street. Sp. 2 C. Glen C. Brown, 23, died at a U.S. Army Hospital.

Police said he was hurled from his car in the collision early yesterday. The other automobile was driven by Jerry Brown, 21, of Van Buren, who was held on an open charge.

The rear door of the store banged and the men at the window whirled and saw Charles Fessler dashing forward.

"Here you are, Morgan!" cried the newspaperman. "It's about time. You've told him, Buffington."

The hardware man nodded. "I've told him that Jagger's quit, yes."

"And the marshal?"

"Good riddance," snapped Morgan. "He wouldn't go up against that bunch, anyway."

"You will?"

"Fessler," cried Buffington, "this isn't the same. Those men are sober, they've already killed one man."

"He's the new mayor."

"Not yet," Morgan reminded. "Yes, you are. The board of supervisors appointed you interim mayor, until the election."

Morgan said bitterly, "I was a fool to let myself in for this."

His eyes picked out a rack of rifles high on the left wall of the store, leaving Fessler and Buffington, he strode toward the rack. When he saw where Morgan was going, Buffington followed hurriedly.

stopped and peered through a broken pane. The cowboys were not in as compact a group as previously. They had become restless. Two or three of the mounted men had spread out. A man on foot, with a rifle, was bent low and moving forward across the street.

Morgan gave him but a quick glance. He was searching for the towhead Brog.

He found him.

The towhead seemed to rise high in the saddle. He fell over backwards hitting the earth heavily.

For one moment there was a stunned silence on the street of Pawnee City. Then a Texas man cried out, "The hardware store! It come from there—"

Buffington's store was instantly the cynosure of hostile eyes. Guns began to fire, but before they opened up, Morgan had pumped a another cartridge into the chamber of the repeater and taken a second shot... at the rifleman crossing the street.

There was a mad scramble now. The unmounted Texans vaulted to their saddles. The mounted ones converged, began rushing the hardware store. Bullets smashed glass, tore through wood.

Buffington's gun spoke, Morgan fired a third time, and a horse screamed and rearing up, threw its rider. Buffington brought down the cowboy as he was scrambling to his feet.

The charge of the cowboys came almost to the front door of the hardware store. One horse even reached the wooden sidewalk, skidded and jolted his rider so that the cowboy, virtually thrusting a revolver into Morgan's face, missed his fire. The man threw away his gun in sudden fright, and scurried away on hands and knees.

There was no leader, no unity among the cowboys. They scattered.

Operation Saves Man After Fight

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—A 200-pound heavyweight who narrowly missed death in a fight with a 335-pound South African was reported recovering in a hospital today.

Doctors said a 2½-hour operation saved the life of Bruce Olson, the 6-foot, 4-inch Kent, Wash., fighter who suffered a brain hemorrhage in his bout with 7-foottered, firing wildly and blindly in all directions.

And then it happened. Faces peering from door and windows up and down the street had seen the towhead drop with a single shot, had seen and heard the firing from the shelter of the hardware store.

Wakeman, one of the supper-visors, sprang out of his livery stable with a revolver in his hand. He began firing at the scattering cowboys. The bald barber produced an old dragon pistol, sent a crashing shot in the general direction of the cowboys.

A third businessman appeared with a shotgun that boomed over the other firing. Even Harlow Tarbox, the owner of The St. Louis Store, joined in the firing, producing a gun from behind his counter.

In moments there was no one left at whom to fire.

The score was: three dead cowboys, two badly wounded. Undoubtedly, two or three others carried wounds away with them.

None of the townspeople had been wounded. Only Artie Puffpuff lay in the dust of the street in front of Morgan's office.

2-inch Ewart Potgieter. Olson was knocked out in the sixth round of a scheduled 10-round bout Saturday night. Helped to his feet after the count, he took a few wild swings, sank onto his stool in the corner and collapsed.

At a hospital seven tiny holes were drilled in his skull before a blood clot was found, said Dr. Clinton McGill, Oregon boxing commission physician, who assisted a team of neurosurgeons in the operation.

The clot was removed and later yesterday Olson recovered consciousness. McGill said he was rational and was able to eat.

McGill said it would be several days before they could tell whether recovery would be complete.

Olson will never fight again anyway, said his manager, Maxie Weisbart of Seattle.

Potgieter, who came to this country earlier this year, expressed concern for Olson, but said he did not intend to let it stop his career.

SMU Will Meet Kansas in the Region Playoff

By The Associated Press
Six Southwest Conference basketball teams stowed away the short pants today while Southern Methodist, the three-in-a-row champion, looked toward a collision with mighty Kansas in the regional NCAA playoff.

The Methodist wound up the regular season last week with an smashing 87-59 victory over Arkansas, giving them a 11-1 record in conference play and 21-3 for the campaign.

Wednesday Assistant Coach Bob Prewitt will be at Manhattan, Kan. to look over Kansas in its Big Seven Conference game with Kansas State. The Jayhawks appear certain to be SMU's opponent in the first round of the NCAA regional in Dallas March 15. They held a 2-game lead over Kansas State with two games to play and can clinch the title by winning Wednesday. Otherwise it would take a victory over Colorado Saturday.
